Beyerdynamic

For 100 years, Beyerdynamic has maintained a commitment to outstanding sound.

Beyerdynamic history is characterized by the development and advancement of a wide variety of innovations. In the 1930s, the company created the first dynamic headphones and the first studio-ready dynamic microphone. This sound expertise sets Beyerdynamic apart.

The history of microphones at Beyerdynamic began with the M19 in 1939 and even back then, quality control was taken very seriously. Legend has it that, during its certification, the robustness of the M19 was tested by dropping it from the second floor of the Berlin Broadcasting Centre. It passed with flying colors!

Since the company was founded by Eugen Beyer in 1924, Beyerdynamic has relied on the "Made in Germany" seal of quality. 100 years later, around 85% of the headphones and microphones Beyerdynamic sold are still manufactured in Germany – and mostly by hand.

Whenever good sound matters, Beyerdynamic is there.
